DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Claims 6,8,10 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in Paper No. 5.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-5,9,13-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ralph et al. (5989291) in view of Crabbs (2193122) and Cologna et al. (5034254). Ralph et al. disclose (Fig. 9) an intervertebral spacer having first 100a and second 200 plates in a spaced apart relationship that oppose one another. It can also be seen (Fig. 5) that a Belleville washer 130 with a central opening 132 is used in the device as a restoring force element. With respect to the limitation of a retaining wall on the first plate

Art Unit: 3738

Fig. 7 shows a post structure 204 with a ball-shaped head on the second plate. It can also be seen there is a threaded bore 209 in the post for a setscrew 205. Fig. 8 shows the washer having a curvate volume 233 for the ball-shaped head. However, Ralph et al. do not disclose the Belleville washer has at least one radially spaced concentric groove or spiral slots. Crabbs shows (Fig. 3) a washer 39 with a plurality of radially spaced concentric grooves 43. Crabbs also teaches the grooves provide the ability of the washer to be more compressively resilient, col. 3, lines 44-47. Cologna et al. show (Fig. 5) a washer 28 with a plurality of spiral slots extending from a locus on the peripheral edge to a locus, which is radially in from the edge. Cologna et al. teach that providing a washer with spiral slots reduces the resistance the washer has exerted on it by the forces acting on it, col. 7, lines 23-28. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use a plurality of radially concentric grooves in the washer as taught by Crabbs and spiral slots as taught by Cologna et al. in the intervertebral spacer of Ralph et al. in order to enable the vertebral device to provide more resiliency since the washer is more expandable and flexible resulting from the incorporation of slots and grooves.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-5,7,9,11-20 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-7, 9,11-18,20 of copending Application No. 09/974154 in view of Cologna et al. (5034254). US application 09/974154 discloses the invention as claim except for the spiral slots. Cologna et al. teach that providing a washer with spiral slots reduces the resistance the washer has exerted on it by the forces acting on it, col. 7, lines 23-28. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use spiral slots in the washer of copending application 09/974154 to impart more flexibility in the device.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 7,11,12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
